

UOF - Market status

The market status is an important concept, and Betradar provides different statuses for a market, illustrated in the following image:

When we roll back bet settlements, their status will change to 0 (deactivated), but because of certain context (like a goal gets reviewed and does not count in the end), the next odds_change message might have the market included as active (status=1).

| Status ID | Status text | Description |
|-----------|-----------------------|--|
| 1 | Active | Odds are provided and you can accept bets on the market. |
| -1 | Suspended | Odds continue to be provided but you should not accept bets on the market for a short time (e.g. from right before a goal and until the goal has been observed/confirmed). |
| 0 | Deactivated /Inactive | Odds are no longer provided for this market. A market can go back to Active again i.e.: A total 3.5 market is deactivated since 0.5, 1.5 or 2.5 is the most balanced market. However, if a goal is scored, then the 3.5 market becomes the most balanced again, changing status to active . There are numerous other reasons for this change as well, and it happens on a regular basis. |
| -3 | Settled | Bet Settlement messages have been sent for this market, no further odds will be provided. However, it should be noted that in rare cases (error conditions), a settled market may be moved to cancelled by a bet_cancel message. Note: Markets that are rolled back from settled can go back to active again. An example would be if a goal is getting reviewed and finally didn't count. This would lead to use again offering i.e. A 1st goal market. |
| -4 | Cancelled | This market has been cancelled. No further odds will be provided for this market. This state is only seen during recovery for matches where the system has sent out a cancellation message for that particular market. |
| -2 | Handed over | Not a real market status. This status is normally seen under recovery, and is a signal that the producer that sends this message is no longer sending odds for this market. Odds will come from another producer going forward (and might already have started coming from the new producer). Handed over is also sent by the prematch producer when the Live Odds producer takes over a market. If you have not received the live odds change yet, the market should be suspended, otherwise the message can be ignored. If the live odds change does not eventually appear, the market should likely be deactivated. Note: If more than 60 seconds pass without an odds change after the handed over market occurs, it should definitely be treated as an error case. |
